TOKIO, May 23.—The department of communications announced today that more than 200 persons are believed to be dead in the earthquake this morning at Toyo-Oka, and several hundred were injured in the earthquake and fire at Kinsaki Springs, a famous resort visited by tourists.

It is not believed any foreigners were victims of the quake or fire.

LONDON, May 23.—Dispatches from Tokyo to the Evening News say it is reported the town of Kinsaki was destroyed by an earthquake. It was reported that a railroad train had been buried in the collapse of a tunnel near Ashiya. The Iwano silver mine was reported greatly damaged by collapsing tunnels.

The Evening News' special from Tokyo said that the inhabitants of Toyo-Oka were fleeing and that the town was burning. It said great confusion prevailed in Osaka, Kyoto, Kobe and Nagoya, but no damage was reported from these cities.

It was reported in this message that military airplanes from Osaka had flown over Tajima province and reported that a considerable death list was indicated from apparent conditions in villages of that section.

TOKIO, May 23.—Reports from Osaka continued meagre regarding the loss of life and intensity of damages which followed in the earthquake and fire today which shook the district, 80 miles northwest of Osaka.

The vernacular newspapers assert several hundred casualties were reported. An airplane from the Asahi, a Tokyo newspaper, relayed reports that the fire at Toyo-Oka continued to rage and the whole town was seemingly destroyed.

Police at Kyoto report 10 persons dead and many injured in the town of Kumihama, where numerous houses collapsed. The forests were reported to be burning in that section. Many other towns were reported in flames.

The Evening News Dispatch from Tokyo said 80 persons were reported dead in Kumiya.

OSAKA, May 23.—Two hundred houses were reported collapsed and numerous fires were raging today in the vicinity of Toyo-Oka, a town of 7,700 population, 80 miles northwest of Osaka, as a result of an earthquake, which terrified residents, fearing a repetition of the Tokio disaster of 1923.

The earthquake, according to meteorological reports was a horizontal vibration of nearly three inches, which is a record for the past 30 years. The tremor was continuous and lasted for several minutes.

Reports received here by the vernacular newspapers report the Toyo-Oka postoffice has collapsed and the railroad station is burning. No detailed reports have been received here as to the casualties but it is believed that there are comparatively few, in that the province was thinly populated.

TYPHOID STORY IS TOLD BY UNIT

Bearing On Milk Is Shown In This Connection

In connection with the present efforts of the Morgan County health unit to safeguard the milk and food supplies of the cities the following interesting story is told of an occurrence in the New York district.

The first remarkable case of a food handler spreading Typhoid fever without having the disease was in 1901. The case is internationally known as the Typhoid Mary case. It was noticed in 1901 that a visitor of the family, in which Typhoid Mary cooked, developed Typhoid fever after entering the household. The cook went to another family a few days later a member of this family had typhoid.

In 1902 the cook obtained a new place. Two weeks after her arrival in this family the laundress had typhoid fever and seven members of the household. In 1904 the cook went to another home. There were four in the family and 7 servants. Within three weeks four of these people were attacked with typhoid. In 1906, she went to another family between August 27 and September 3rd, Six out of eleven inmates were attacked with typhoid. She entered another family on September 21 giving it to another person. In 1907 she went to New York. A month after her arrival two cases developed. The cook was taken in hand by health authorities in 1907. Cultures taken every few days showed typhoid for three years. Sometimes the examinations showed enormous numbers of typhoid germs and again only a few would be found. She was released on parole in 1910 promising to report to the health department and not engage in cooking or food handling. She broke her parole and disappeared. In 1915 there occurred a typhoid outbreak in a Maternity hospital. The total of 25 cases developed. Investigations by the health department eliminated the water and milk supply as causing the outbreak and found Typhoid Mary, working for the hospital. During the disappearance she infected a friend and caused several cases in a small private sanitarium and 27 in another hospital. Recently Dr. Park of New York traced several hundred cases of typhoid fever to a milk supply produced at

START WORK SOON ON WATER TOWER

Representatives Of The Chicago Bridge Co. To Supervise

Work is to be started next week on the new water tower, to be erected on Washington street. The work will be under the direct supervision of representatives of the Chicago Bridge Company, builders of the tower.

Some members of the working party which will erect the tower already have reached here and it is believed that the task of placing the material can be gotten underway with in a day or two.

The tower will be one of the largest of its type in the South and will provide the Twin Cities, it is said, with more than double the present available pressure, inasmuch as the new tower's pressure will be greater than the present tower.

Two Branches To Be Opened Soon

Two branches of the Tennessee Valley Shrine club were being urged today by an official of the organization to discuss among themselves the plans of the order for construction of an additional wing for the Benevolent hospital here.

It will be recalled that construction of the wing was made one of the features of the 1924 Shrine program here. Heretofore the official explained, apparently it has been difficult to enlist the wholehearted interest and co-operation of the membership in the plan. His opinion, however, was that the present is an opportune time to renew the effort and he expressed the hope that all members of the club will begin consideration of ways and means for the work.

LOUISVILLE PARTY OF BOOSTERS TO BE ENTERTAINED HERE

Clyde Hendrix Today Perfecting Plans For The Event

MEETING IS SET FOR THE MASONIC

Troup and Clopton To Extend Welcome To The Visitors

Plans for welcoming the Louisville Boosters, when they appear in the Twin Cities on Thursday may 28 were being perfected today by Clyde Hendrix, president of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce.

Mr. Hendrix stated the visitors would arrive here at shortly after nine o'clock. A parade will be formed at the union station, and, headed by the Louisville brass band, will move over the principal business streets of both cities to the Masonic theater, where a program will be rendered to which the public has been accorded a cordial invitation to attend.

Judge L. P. Troup on behalf of the citizenship of Albany-Decatur and Morgan County will extend a welcome to the Boosters. J. W. Clopton will welcome the visitors in behalf of the industries of this community. He will explain also to the visitors something of the industrial advantages of this section.

The meeting will be turned over to the visitors at this point and it is understood that one or two men of national prominence will speak for a few moments each.

Between 150 and 200 men are expected to arrive on the Boosters' special train. The train carries two diners and the Boosters are requesting that cities along the route will not offer any entertainment other than the scheduled programs.

CORDIAL WELCOME IS GIVEN BY TRINITY IN KIWANIS MEETING

Crowd Of 300 Citizens Gather To Greet Kiwanians

CLUB PLEASED WITH RESULT

Farm Relations Series Of Gatherings Has Been Successful

A crowd of 300 citizens of Trinity and the surrounding district greeted the Kiwanis hosts and their guests Friday night when the Farm Relations Committee held the fourth meeting of the farm series at the Trinity school building. The general spirit of the meeting was that of friendliness and co-operative effort in a more progressive program over the county.

Raybourn Neville, one of Trinity's foremost and progressive citizens and widely known over this section, presided. Reverend V. C. Herndon delivered the address of welcome assuring the visiting delegation of the welcome that Trinity was extending at all times. The speaker touched on the needs of a closer relationship, unified effort, to obtain the greater progressive steps in the county.

C. J. Randolph delivered the response on the behalf of the Kiwanis club and outlined the purposes of the meeting. He likewise advocated concerted effort in the communities of the county.

M. R. Rankin led the songs of the club with J. R. Daniell at the piano.

The farm relations committee was pleased with the results of the Trinity trip. Every town that the Kiwanis have visited in the carrying out of this program has evinced a real live interest in the affairs of their own community and the other sections of the county. There has been a noticeable change in the county along the line of co-operativeness. The committee feels that the Kiwanis club has played a vital part in bringing the county into closer touch with county and city problems.

The following programme was enjoyed at Trinity:

Rev. V. C. Herndon, Welcome Address.

Body of Missing Woman Is Found

(Associated Press)

WINTHROP, Maine, May 23.—The body of Miss Aida Heywood who was taken from her cottage at Lake Maranacook early Wednesday by a man who shot her aunt, Mrs. Emma L. Towns and set fire to the cottage, was found today in a room on the second floor of a cottage owned by Jennie Gray at Pine Point.

The Gray cottage is about a mile and a half from the former home of Miss Hayward. The state authorities had the name of a man whom they believed had abducted the woman. The body was found on a bed cot and was almost nude. It was believed that Miss Hayward had been choked to death.

Girl Starved

Marjorie Schillinger was placed by her father, a Chicagoan, in the temporary custody of another man, Anthony Neher. Neher charged that he imprisoned the girl in an attic, with her hands in a pillory and a wire around her neck, in which condition she was not allowed to eat, and could only drink the water before her with difficulty. Police rescued her. She is shown just before her rescue.

WEATHER DECLARED FAVORABLE BUT ALL OBSERVERS 'WORRY'

Copenhagen Insists No Cause Exists For Alarm Yet

N. Y., HOWEVER, IS CONCERNED

Absence Of Wireless Prevents Word Of Planes' Progress

(Associated Press)

COPENHAGEN, May 23.—Copenhagen was still without news of Amundsen at five o'clock this morning, but there were no signs of anxiety shown over the failure to hear from the explorer and his companions.

It is realized that his final decision to carry an increased fuel supply instead of wireless apparatus makes any news impossible until his return to his base at Spitzbergen.

OSLO, Norway, May 23.—The Shipping Gazette reports that the weather conditions for Captain Amundsen's Polar expedition are very favorable. The dispatch says that the temperature is now mild.

Those with arctic experience believed that Amundsen's continued absence indicated that he had landed at the pole or had discovered an intermediate body of land on which he was investigating.

In either case it has been pointed out that they might have encountered difficulty in again taking the air.

Norwegian press comments agree that it is their view that Amundsen has landed at the pole. The newspapers argue that otherwise he would have now returned.

Captain Otto Sverdrup, Norwegian explorer, said he did not think the discovery of new land at all probable. He expressed the opinion that there is no land around the pole, recalling that Perry did not see land around the region. He said that in his opinion, the region around the pole is of open water and drifts of ice, sometimes level and sometimes broken.

Major Gunner, another arctic explorer, expresses a contrary view, and said that he would not exclude the possibility of discovery of new lands.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Persons familiar with Arctic conditions felt concern today over the safety of Raold Amundsen and his five companions in their north pole aeroplane explorations. They left Spitzbergen Thursday afternoon and are long overdue on their return unless they have reached the Pole and are spending time there.

Advices were that there had been no word received from the plane.

The aeroplane was not equipped with wireless and no information can be obtained.

The distance to the Pole is 680 miles from Spitzbergen which Captain Amundsen was expected to negotiate in about nine hours. If a favorable landing place was not found the journey should have been made in eighteen hours.

The explorer said that he would not attempt a landing but would turn about and return to Spitzbergen.

BOSTON, May 23.—All the plans of the Capt. Donald B. McMillan's arctic expedition will be subordinated to the relief of Amundsen, if Amundsen is not heard from before the McMillan ships, Bowden and Peary, leave this country early in June.

SCOUTS TAUGHT ANTI-FLY WORK

Health Officer Counts Heavily On Scouts Aiding Greatly

How to combat the danger of flies and mosquitoes is being taught the Boy Scouts of Morgan county by Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan county health officer. Saturday Dr. McRee met the patrol leaders and assistant patrol leaders of one troop and took them on a tour of inspection, showing them how the Scouts may assist in the health work this summer.

Dr. McRee declared he was counting heavily on the aid of the Scouts this year.

The outlook for obtaining funds, with which to conduct an anti-malaria campaign this year still is dark, he said.

The campaign will cost in the neighborhood of $800, yet only $200 has been made available, half of that amount coming from the Anti-Tuberculosis Association and the other half from the City of Decatur. Dr. McRee still is hopeful, he said, that Albany, Hartselle and Falkville can make up a part of the remaining money necessary for the work, and that whatever else is needed may be obtained from the county or some other source.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Golden Bed" the second big Famous Forty-Paramount production by Cecil B. DeMille, the man who made the "Ten Commandments," opens a 2 days' run next Monday and Tuesday at the Princess theater.

The picture is an adaptation by Jeanie Macpherson, based on the novel by Wallace Irwin which was published serially in Pictorial Review under the title "Tomorrow's Bread."

A beautiful girl is the owner of the golden bed—it is a legacy from her mother. She is selfish and cruel, with a loveliness that works like a spell on men. To her the bed represents ease and power.

She marries a Spanish nobleman but loses him in Europe and comes back home, to find her father has lost his money and absconded, leaving nothing for his daughters but the house and its furnishings.

She has a sister who is her exact opposite in character, and there is a poor boy whom she used to scorn who has now become a man of money and power in the town. Partly to spite her sister, but mostly for mercenary reasons, she exerts her bewitchment on the young man and marries him.

The young fellow now has what he has dreamed of since boyhood—the lovely girl who once made fun of him because he was poor. The rest of the story is the shattering of his dream—the slow realization that it is the sister, always unobtrusively helping, whom he really loves.

It's easy to imagine what Cecil B. DeMille can do with a story like this.

Lillian Rich, whom DeMille claims is the greatest star "find" since Gloria Swanson, plays the leading feminine role in the production. Vera Reynolds, another DeMille star discovery, is the younger sister and Rod La Rocque is cast as the boy candy maker who becomes the owner of a long chain of stores.

YOUR HEALTH

Deficient Circulation May Cause Hair to Fall Out

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE are many causes for falling hair. All of them go back to one chief factor—deficient blood circulation in the scalp.

Some of us have big blood vessels and strongly acting hearts. The blood is sent in forceful stream to every part of the body, including the tips of the fingers and toes and the crown of the head. With an abundant supply of rich, invigorating, life-giving blood, the hair thrives and grows apace.

This is not the case if Nature has been stingy in making the blood vessels. Nor is it to be expected that a weak and feebly beating heart will send quantities of blood to the roots of the hair.

Ill health, late hours, loss of sleep and lack of exercise will weaken the action of the heart. Falling hair is merely a symptom of lowered vitality. Restore the tone and vigor of the body and the hair will stop falling out.

There is another factor, and it is concerning that which I wish to enlarge upon today. Without the proper foods the hair cannot be well nourished.

When hair is burned, you recall what a pungent and disagreeable odor fills the atmosphere. That is due to burning sulphur, a generous ingredient in the structure of the hair.

When we think of foods, too many of us recall the protein, fats and carbohydrates. We forget about the essential minerals. That is one of the pathetic defects of our education. The habits of civilization deprive us of many important things. One of them is the increasing lack of mineral elements in the diet. Mineral starvation is all too common in America. This is due to our tremendous consumption of pastries and denatured foods.

Sulphur is a mineral we rarely hear about, but for the maintenance and repair of certain tissues, particularly the hair, an abundance must be had. Without it the body must suffer and, so far as the hair is concerned, there cannot be health and adequate renewal.

There are certain foods particularly rich in sulphur. They are lean beef, eggs, milk, whole wheat bread and crackers, oatmeal, beans, peas and potatoes.

It just be remembered that the outer coverings of the cereals and vegetables contain the chief mineral supply. They must be cooked in such a way as to retain the sulphur. If they are boiled, the fluid must be permitted to escape in steam and not be poured off, carrying away the dissolved minerals.

Try to add to your sulphur intake and give your hair a chance. Improve your general health and permit the heart to resume its activity. Daily stimulating applications to the scalp will give temporary increase in the blood supply and thus help the growth and strength of the hair. To this end the various electrical and light treatments are useful. There is a virtue in the following tonic application:

Would Extract Phosphate . . . 15 drachms
Ginger . . . 15 drachms
Bismuth . . . 15 drachms
Lard . . . 15 drachms
Rub into scalp after washing head.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Incapacitated, mentally, by shock, as a result of experiences during the World War, Renshaw makes a proposition to David Campbell, wealthy, elderly man of leisure, that for a year he assume responsibility for him (Renshaw)—practically "buy" him. Doctor Stanley, life-long friend of Campbell's, indorses the proposition, which Campbell, with some natural misgivings, accepts. The arrangement is that the young man becomes an inmate of the Campbell household, with the nominal duty of secretary. Renshaw meets Verity, Campbell's granddaughter, and gets the impression that she does not like him. Jenks, the butler, Renshaw also feels, is distinctly hostile.

CHAPTER II.—At dinner, a guest, referred to as Madame Hvoeslef, is present. Renshaw has a feeling that the servants are spying on him. Jenks warns him that there are "queer things" going on in the house. That night he is disturbed by the appearance on the wall of his room of a strange, ghastly face. Mystratone, a doctor in the corridor outside his door, causes him to investigate, but he discovers nothing unusual.

CHAPTER III.—Campbell tells Renshaw that the household is in some respects "unusual," but makes light of his story of the mysterious sounds. Renshaw meets Madame Hvoeslef, a foreigner, with an air of mystery.

CHAPTER IV.—Madame Hvoeslef asks Renshaw to go to New York, on next day, on a mission for her. Renshaw, apparently seeking to escape, locks himself in his room. He hears the sound of heavy body dragging itself up to the transom over the door. Then a hand appears, apparently seeking to open the transom. Unsuccessful, the hand vanishes, and Renshaw hears the sound of a heavy body crawling away.

CHAPTER V.—Remembering Jenks' warning, Renshaw tells the butler of the mysterious noises, but gets no satisfaction. Madame Hvoeslef gives him a handbag, declaring its contents are priceless, which he is to deliver to Mr. Atkins in New York. After dressing, Renshaw again finds his door locked. Renshaw delivers the bag to Hart, Campbell's chauffeur, who drives him to town, tells him Verity and Madame Hvoeslef are at the Waldorf. Remembering his locked door, that morning Renshaw is vaguely uneasy about the handbag, and calls up Mr. Atkins. He learns that the bag he delivered contained only a blank paper.

CHAPTER VI.—Meeting the ladies at the Waldorf, Renshaw learns that Madame Hvoeslef has delivered the bag he delivered being a duplicate, for which no explanation can be made. Hart gets permission to stay in town that night, and Renshaw's substitute chauffeur. On the way home Renshaw sends back the substitute, taking the wheel himself.

CHAPTER VII.—Despite her indifference Renshaw feels himself becoming more interested in Verity. During the night he is awakened by the girl, who tells him her grandfather has had an accident and is unconscious. They get the old man to bed. Restored to consciousness he with difficulty conveys to Renshaw a message, "Watch! Take charge."

CHAPTER VIII.—Verity is annoyed at her grandfather placing Renshaw in charge, but she reaches an understanding. Verity being impressed by Renshaw's masterful handling of the situation.

CHAPTER IX.—Doctor Stanley visits Campbell, and departs, leaving the local doctor, Morris, in charge. Stanley makes light of the mysterious episodes, as Renshaw describes them. He tells the secretary Madame Hvoeslef's property in the handbag was her memoirs, which she feared might be stolen.

CHAPTER X.—While Verity is showing Renshaw over the house, the two are locked in a clothes closet, the door slamming shut for no apparent reason, and resisting all Renshaw's efforts to open it. They are on the verge of asphyxiation when Jenks, in great perturbation, releases them.

a farm looked after by a typhoid carrier who had typhoid fever 47 years ago. You can easily see that if typhoid Mary had worked in a dairy her lists of deaths and sickness from typhoid would have been far greater in number. The health departments sole duty is to try to safeguard your health. By co-operating with it we can keep down many epidemics, lower our death rate and make Alabama a better place in which to live.

U. S. Wants Loans Paid By Debtors

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The United States government has taken steps to collect only the war debts owed by Europe but also reconstruction loans made after the signing of the armistice.

Several nations have failed to pay either the interest or the principal on the reconstruction debt and the government at Washington has called their attention to the agreement made when the plan was adopted. When the plan was made it was known that there would be no discrimination in knowledge. The solution that seemed preposterous brief sense of well-being departed the mental jolt of the convalescent. Tawno Ker was taking a lot. He wondered what Jenks would make on other recollections that had occurred. They, too, were "regrettable incidents" oozed from the room, leaving his tray.

Renshaw's thoughts swung to Verity. How plucky the girl had been! She would actually have left rather than take what she could more than her "share" of the coming air supply!

He wondered how much longer could he hold her self-control, what would have happened if he had not heard him for, say, an hour. That was not a reflection mind cared to dwell upon. He from it to the memory of the genuine consternation when he covered that Miss Campbell, Renshaw, had been a prisoner, discomfort, her possible danger affected him. Renshaw was a that.

He looked at his watch. Half-past five. He and Verity best must have been in that closet almost two hours. Was come down to dinner? He hoped believed she would. The strenuous wish to see her at the table though he did not realize it; the scions reputation of the foreboding house charm. He did not repeat that tea-hour-tete-a-tete had been a fascinating experience one that largely owed its charm unexpectedness. Now he wanted see the young loveliness of Verity, to discover whether the had come back to her beautiful to watch her and to listen to her. He did not ask himself why he did these things, but if he had the answer would have been prompt. He merely wished to be certain the girl was herself again—that felt no ill effects of the afternoon experience.

His first glance at her as he entered the dining room and took places at the table was reassured. She looked exactly as usual, though possibly even lovelier. The evening gown she wore was one he had seen before, a shimmering thin white and silver, set off by a double-looped chain of pearls, over beauty of which Madame Hvoeslef once exclaimed.

"But I love you in those, cherie," said. "I always rejoice when you wear them. Pearls were made for you should wear no other jewels."

"These were Aunt Katharine's," Verity explained. "She gave them to me on my last birthday. They down to her from her great-grandmother, and every generation since added to the necklace, until now it is really too much of it. I feel a Christmas tree festooned with corn when I have it on."

"But it is perfect. It is one of the finest I have seen—and that much."

Verity changed the subject. You see grandfather before you do?" she asked Renshaw.

"I looked in for a moment, but was asleep or still unconscious—I don't know."

Doctor Morris momentarily pondered the vigorous operation of knife and fork.

"He's very restless in his conscious intervals," he remarked. "There's something on his mind. I apprehensive—thinks he's too old to get over this, I suppose. It will better if he doesn't fully regain consciousness for a day or two. Worst of the worst thing in the world for as I've said before."

"Can he speak yet?"

Renshaw asked the question. He served that Jenks, busy at the board, remained motionless till he heard the answer.

"He tried to, but we won't let him. Everything depends on keeping quiet."

The manner of Morris was less sure than it had been in the morning. Apparently he had not been wholly misled with the report of the day nurse who had arrived after luncheon had spent the intervals with his tent.

Seeing the eyes of Verity wider alarm, Renshaw broke in on the flections that Morris seemed to be dressing to himself rather than to table companions.

"All that is natural enough," casually contributed. "Mr. Campbell is always anxious about his health. He is the type to take his illness seriously for a day or two, till he convinces him that he is on the mend. 'I suppose so.' Morris' words were non-committal, but his expression brightened. He ate his dinner with his usual appreciation and strict attention to the enterprise.

Catching Verity's glance, Renshaw smiled at her reassuringly, and received a rather tremulous smile in turn. No reference whatever had been made to the closet episode. It was clear that neither Morris nor Madame Hvoeslef had heard of it. It became clear that they were not to hear of—that an unspoken but understood der to that effect had been issued. One would know of it save Jenks, the discretion of Jenks, as far as members of the family were concerned, could be relied upon.

After dinner Morris found time a short aside to the secretary: "The old man's worrying about something. I don't know just what but it isn't good for him."

Renshaw nodded.

"It was afraid he would. If you let me speak to him, and if he understands, I think I may help him."

"Know what he's worrying about?" Not entirely, but I have a

PYTHIANS RETURN FROM CONVENTION

Laying Of Cornerstone For Home Biggest Feature

The laying of the cornerstone for the Knights of Pythias widows and orphans home, at Montgomery, was the biggest feature of the convention, held there this week, according to local delegates, who have returned from the capital.

The convention was described as the best held in many years. Following the laying of the cornerstone, an old fashioned barbecue was enjoyed by more than a thousand guests who were served under the auspices of temple number 127 of the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan.

The election of grand lodge officers did not develop a single contest, all stepping up one position with the exception of Mayer W. Aldridge, for his ninth time, will serve as grand keeper of records and seals, and P. A. Travis, grand master of exchequer, both being re-elected. T. A. Goodwin was chosen for the position of grand outer guard and Hugo Black of Birmingham was elected supreme representative.

Many interesting and inspiring addresses were heard throughout the convention. Colonel Allen Crenshaw, to whom a great deal of the credit is due for the Pythian home, made a most inspiring address on "A Dream and a Fact". In recognition of his services, he was presented with a handsome silver service.

Hon. Robert H. Mangrum, known as the silver tongued orator delivered the principal address of the occasion.

Other features of the occasion were talks by Mrs. Amy Carle and Mrs. Annie Bowick Grand Senior and Grand Junior respectively of the Grand Temple Pythian sisters in session in the same building both making splendid talks pledging the support of their organization to Pythianism.

Miss Virginia Hanley of the state children's welfare work was invited to address the assembled body of Pythians and was heard with much interest and enthusiasm.

devoted to installing of officers, hearing reports of committees, and hearing from lodges on the Pythian home fund, Hermonie Lodge No. 16 of Decatur making the best showing from point of exceeding the quota, Past Grand Chancellor Dix of Decatur made a most interesting talk just before adjournment.

READINGS PLEASE A LARGE CROWD

The contest in dramatic readings at the Decatur high school last night was an occasion of great interest. There was a big crowd on hand and enthusiasm ran high as the contest proceeded.

The exercises began with a "Fashion Show" by forty girls of the sewing classes, in which pretty frocks, products of the girls' handiwork, were the center of attraction.

Nine young ladies then gave their readings, in this order: Misses Mary Wallace Smiley, Lottie Moore Pointer, Suzanne Jones, Julia Leigh Lynne, Imogene Nungesser, Lottie Lovin, Blanche Buchanan, Gladys Garnett, and Mary Fitzgerald. The ease, grace, and effectiveness with which this lovely group of girls interpreted their selections won for them flowers and much applause.

The judges were Prof. E. L. Hayes, of Hartselle; Rev. L. F. Goodwin and Rev. A. N. Penland, of Albany. They reported in favor of the second speaker, Miss Lottie Moore Pointer. The chairman of the committee, Prof. Hayes, said they regretted that there was only one medal to award, as all had acquitted themselves with great credit. The medal was offered by Mrs. Clara Berry Wyker.

Thirty Boy Scouts under the leadership of Ferrow Himes of the Y. M. C. A., gave a beautiful drill in athletic exercises, moving as one man in perfect rhythm.

Superintendent Benson announced that Rev. Edward Mackay, of Birmingham, would preach the commencement sermon Sunday at 8 p. m. at the auditorium, and that there would be exercises every evening next

VAST DIFFERENCE EXISTS BETWEEN BECOMING JOINERS AND BELONGERS

The Age-Herald recently published an interesting article, intimating that, since the war, Americans are becoming a nation of "belongers." Organizations of all descriptions have been perfected and it does seem to be a fact that unless the average person can lay claim to "belonging" to half a dozen different organizations, they are, in slang, "small potatoes."

However, there is a vast difference between "belonging" and "joining." Many may claim to "belong," when it happens to be convenient to do so, but few really do "belong." Many join, but few belong.

Webster tells us that to belong means to be possessed by. One could almost count on the fingers, the number of people who appear to be really possessed by an organization. There are a few loyal members of the churches, of the lodges and of the chamber of commerce. Unfortunately they are too few.

Churches would be far better off if more of those who "join" would really "belong;" if they would be utterly possessed by the church in which their membership rests; if they were available at any and all times when their church calls them. The same is true of lodges and civic organizations. Usually, when there is work to be done, the task falls on the shoulders of a few loyal souls who really "belong." The "joiners" generally find a comfortable seat in the grand stand and assume an attitude of "let George do it."

TRIBUTE PAID TO MINISTERS BY FORMER POSTMASTER GENERAL

Newspaper makers and readers are more accustomed to thinking of statements from Will H. Hayes, former postmaster general, and now czar of the movies, as concerning the moving picture business, of which Mr. Hay is a worthwhile champion.

Mr. Hayes, in addition to his other duties, however is chairman of the laymens committee of the Presbyterian church, which is meeting in convention in Columbus, O.

In connection with his committee work, Mr. Hayes makes a report to the convention, in which he pays the following deserved tribute to the ministers of America:

"As a practical matter, if we would realize what the minister means to the individual or to the community let us try to imagine what existence would be without him; no worship, no sacraments, no baptisms, no marriage ceremonies except the signing of a contract; at the grave the lowering of the coffin in silence, with no word of tomorrow. We could not bear it a week. We would starve. We could not exist as a nation if we did not have among us, working early and late, interpreters of God, reminding us in days of prosperity as in days of adversity, that, in the last analysis, the eternal things are the only things that count. To keep him, his wife and his family clothed, fed and educated, we pay him thirty dollars a week, scarcely more than the wage of the garbage collector, one-half the wage of a carpenter, one-third the wage of a mason; for the builders of the walls of the Temple, one-third the wage of the bricklayers on an apartment house."

DISTRICT ATTORNEY GOES AFTER MAGAZINES IN WASHINGTON

Several times within the past few months, The Daily has found occasion to refer to the flooding of news stands with magazines which leave much to be desired in good manners, to say the least for them.

To those readers who have seen fit to agree with The Daily in its references to these periodicals, the action of the officials in Washington, seeking to ascertain whether or not there is some way by which the circulation of the magazines can be curtailed or eliminated, is encouraging.

"The curse of this disgraceful situation," says Assistant District Attorney Given, "is that many of these papers are being purchased by the boys and girls in our high schools."

Mr. Given particularly complains of magazines which specialize in so-called "art" pictures which are in fact only lascivious pictures of nude women, many of them disgraceful. An effort is made to give character to some of these magazines by the reproduction of well known paintings, surrounded, however, with suggestive cheapness utterly changing their character. Mr. Given expressed the opinion that some things are art in an art gallery that are not art when they are used commercially to arouse an erotic interest on the part of young people. The Washington Evening Star says that one of their reporters collected nearly thirty magazines having an alleged circulation of millions which were found to contain "disgusting jokes, nude pictures, obscene literature or all three." Particular objection was had to some of the magazine advertisements, which are vulgar and suggestive in the extreme. "The entire tenor of some of these magazines," says the Star, "from the suggestive drawings on the cover, through the literature and straight back through much of the advertising was found to be questionable if not illegal."

In a statement issued by the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church, it was said that the circulation of this kind of literature is infinitely greater than ever before in the country's history.

"Perhaps even worse than the immorality of these publications," said the Board, "is their appalling vulgarity. The whole tendency of this kind of literature is to debauch the youthful taste, destroy the conventions which protect society and bring morality into contempt. It is essentially un-American in character and is even consciously anti-American in spirit. The native Americans has many sins for which to answer, but this foulness is distinctly an imported fault."

"Many men, including Hamlin Garland, Hendrik Willem Van Loon and Edwin Markham, have recently called attention to this new peril threatening American youth. The danger is not only to be found on news stands, but in popular novels which are common in drug store libraries and elsewhere. The District Attorney and the Star deserve the gratitude of the Nation's Capital in calling attention to the local state of affairs and it is hoped that their action will point the way to the police and prosecuting agencies in other American cities."

HOW WILL FARMERS MEET THE NEXT EMERGENCY IN THE COTTON SEASON?

Reports from various sections of Morgan county indicate that cotton growers have planted large acreage. With so much cotton in the ground, it is a natural sequence that acreage of other crops will not be increased. Much, then, depends on the outcome of the cotton crop.

If the weevil appears in the numbers expected, farmers of Morgan and every other county, must be prepared to move quickly and effectively if the prosperity of Southern planters is to be maintained through the coming fall and winter.

Roland Turner, general agricultural agent of the Southern Railway, has made public some timely suggestions regarding the handling of the cotton crop, which The Daily re-publishes, in the belief that they will be helpful:

"First.—Careful selection of cotton land, with the view to drainage and earliness. Cold, wet, late land will not make cotton, except in extremely dry years. Land that warms up early and upon which cotton will grow off quickly after it is up must be selected.

"Second.—Fertilize liberally with high grade goods, especially goods containing a high percentage of quickly available nitrogen. 600 to 1000 pounds per acre should be used always and probably the most important single factor next to the selection of dry, early land in successful cotton production under weevil conditions, is heavy fertilization.

"Third.—Space cotton thick. Rows should be 3 to 3½ feet and plants should be spaced in the row the width of a chopping hoe apart and 2 to 5 stalks left in the hill, depending on the fertility of the soil. On the better lands 2 stalks to the hill is probably best, but on the poorer, thinner places leave more, 3 or 4 stalks to the hill is best and bear in mind that a thick stand is important. Be sure and leave enough stalks on the land.

"Fourth.—Cultivate often and keep clean of weeds and grass. Of course shallow cultivation is best but the aim should be to keep the crop clean and stirred often.

"The first important step has already been taken. The selection of the land has been made. The fertilizer has been put in except an occasional instance where nitrate of soda will be used as a side dressing. You only now have the thinning, cultivation and protection of the crop by poisoning before you. To leave a thick stand and cultivate shallow land often and at any rate, if possible, to keep the crop clean of weeds and grass until maturity may add much to your yield and to the profits on the crop.

"If you have so handled as to make all of the factors mentioned operative on your crop, you may well afford to think of calcium arsenate and its use in terms of insurance. Remember that poison may save the cotton you have made, but bear in mind that poison makes no cotton."

ALABAMA SCORES VICTORY IN THE SOUTHERN EXPOSITION

The people of the East know more about Alabama now than they did before the Southern Exposition opened in New York. They know that in the South is a state that has many things they did not know any Southern state had. Those who have attended the Exposition, and many thousands have attended it, have seen Alabama's exhibits and have marveled that a Southern state could make such a showing. And their wonder has doubtless been increased by the announcement that the Manufacturers Record prize of $5000 has been awarded to Alabama for the best exhibit made in the Exposition.

The Exposition also has been a wonderful advertisement for Anniston. Mr. C. A. Hamilton, who represented the Anniston Chamber of Commerce at the Exposition, says he found great numbers of people interested in Anniston and the Anniston exhibits and he thinks the showing made by this city was worth half a million dollars in favorable advertising.

In fact the whole South has been tremendously benefited by the Exposition. It has been a revelation to many thousands of people, many of whom had but the crudest kind of idea of the South, its people and its progress.

Doubtless there are many in the North like the man who told Mr. Hamilton that he thought the South raised only cotton and lynched negroes for diversion. Mr. Hamilton was able to get the man right who made the remark, and the Exposition doubtless has made many others realize that their ideas of the South have been wholly wrong.

Announcement that another Southern Exposition is to be held in New York in the Autumn of 1926 is perhaps the best evidence of all that the present Exposition has been a pronounced success and has accomplished the purposes for which it was intended. By the time the second Exposition is opened the people of the East and North will be eager to see what additional progress this marvelous section has made, and they will be shown.—Anniston Star.

Its simplicity and safety make it the ideal home treatment."

SATURDAY CLUB OBSERVES EDUCATION DAY

The Carnegie Library was opened to the members of the Saturday Club on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and each member had invited guests to enjoy the talk by Miss Maud Lindsay of Florence nationally renowned kindergarten worker and author, who was the sole speaker of the education day program that is observed annually by the club. Miss Lindsay held the interest of her hearers through every minute of her talk by her charming personality and her entertaining address.

Miss Lindsay has been in the kindergarten work for about a score of years and is well known throughout the United States where her text books on kindergarten work are used. She is also the author of a number of child's story books. She told some of these stories and compared the impressions left on the minds of the young children by these and some of the usual ones told to children that made wrong impressions that were injurious to them in later life, and that could never be erased inspiring and useful thoughts were brought out about other phases of child life.

Mrs. W. C. Bailey, Mrs. Prent Cartwright and Mrs. Vera Austelle received at the door and ushered those present to the inner rooms which had been appropriately decorated with spring flowers. Lovely punch and wafers were served by Mesdames S. M. Thompson, Harry Wyatt and Charles Malone from the bowl which was embedded in sweet peas and Jacobine vine on a small table. About fifty enjoyed the afternoon.

MRS. IRWIN HOSTESS TO ROOK CLUB

The Canal Street Rook club was entertained on Friday afternoon by Mrs. S. W. Irwin at her home on Canal street and she invited three guests to play with the club and these were Mrs. Ponsomby Kyle, Mrs. E. P. Kingsbury and Mrs. W. M. Voorhies. The guest souvenir for top score at the rook game was awarded to Mrs. Kyle while the two club prizes fell to Mrs. Will Wyker and Mrs. Emmett Himes.

A tempting salad course was served at the conclusion of the games.

FAREWELL SHOWER

Mrs. Frank Morrow was complimented on Friday afternoon with a going away shower by a few of her friends at the home of Mrs. A. H. Higson. Mrs. Morrow will leave soon for a visit to many of the western states including California.

The attractiveness of the home recently remodeled was enhanced by the use of a profusion of sweet peas and hydrangeas, gift flowers.

After the guests had gathered each was given a paper and pencil and they wrote a verse or wish. These were presented her that she might read them on her trip. After this a salad course was served by Mrs. Higson. Mrs. Morrow was the recipient of many lovely and dainty gifts that would be useful during her extended stay, and in a beautiful way she expressed her appreciation of them.

The guests included: Mrs. George Jackson, Mrs. W. P. Baugh, Mrs. J. A. Buttrey, Mrs. O. C. Parker, Mrs. R. McGlathery, Mrs. H. T. Gill, Mrs. T. A. Bowles, Mrs. Harry Wyatt, Mrs. Frank Morrow and Mrs. Higson

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

Mrs. M. S. Bingham honored her daughter, Marion, on Thursday afternoon at their home on East Lafayette street with a party celebrating her tenth birthday. Beautiful flowers, gifts from friends were used throughout the home on the porch as decorations.

As the little friends came they were served delicious punch after which all kinds of games were played on the lawn. Late in the afternoon they were invited into the dining room where they enjoyed ice cream, cake and mints. A feature here was the cutting of the birthday cake. Miss Bernice Whitworth cut the thimble, Gus Hildreth, the ring; Jean Giles the penny; Marion Bingham, the dime and Nanny Robertson the button. The dining table was artistically decorated, pink streamers being draped from the ceiling to the table and caught with bunches of Dorothy Perkins roses and the cake centered the tale and was surrounded by these same flowers. At each place was a souvenir of the afternoon.

The honor guest was showered with lovely gifts by these classmates and friends including:

600 Punctures But Still Full of Air

A new puncture proof inner tube has been introduced in Chicago which was punctured 600 times without the loss of any air. Motorists can increase their tire mileage over twelve thousand miles by using this tube without removing it from the wheel. It costs no more than the ordinary tube. If you are interested you can write Mr. B. B. Gates, a 1208 Glenlake Ave., Chicago, for full information as he wants these tubes introduced everywhere. Wonderful opportunity for agents. Simply send name, a postcard will do. adv. 20-3t.

Herewith is Solution to Puzzle No. 187.

How to Solve It

Every number indicates the beginning of a word—if horizontal, crosswise, until the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, downwards until the first shaded stop below. Compare the synonyms in the appended lists to the spaces in the diagrams and fill in the words you know. These will give you clues to the more difficult words. When completed the words should interlock perfectly.

New York Letter

By Lucy-Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, May 23—The law and the courts, certainly do step into our private lives in the most intimate manner. For instance, John De Largo has been forbidden by the court to commit suicide on his lady love's doorstep. It seems that when Marie Gleia, eighteen and beautiful, rejected the offer of John's heart and hand, the only move open to him, which seemed satisfactory was the threat to kill himself on the aforementioned doorstep. Marie's father objected to this idea and being a believer in law and order took his grievance to court. Whereupon the court issued a restraining order against that form of lover's retaliation. Just what penalty the court would inflict upon him if he ignored the order and went ahead with the suicide, I do not know.

Mrs. William Goadby Loew of this city is the first woman extent to hold the position of master of the hounds among the fox-hunters. She has just been named to that post in a Maryland club, where fox-hunting has all the emphasis that it holds in England.

You never realized to what extent the stately and savage lion is used as architectural adornment until you start out and count them. A recent charity society stunt here was the awarding of a prize to the person, who had first bought a lion-hunting license, who counted the lions on our city buildings. Edna St. Vincent Millay won the prize with a total of 1,197 of the stone beasts, which she found on Fifth avenue, Central Park West, Fifty Ninth street and Park avenue alone.

"The Lady of the Rose" just brought to Broadway serves to do two fine things for theater-goers. It gives us another play, by Martin Flavin who made so decided an indelible with "Children of the Moon" last year, and permits us to admire the lovely Margaret Mower again. The play is an occult fantasy of a playwright who makes a flesh and blood person out of the heroine of his play and tries to find her in the person of his beautiful wife. Of course he is disappointed and in true Flavin manner goes out into eternity with his dream-creation, leaving his wife behind, enriched by his fidelity to romance even though it be in dreams. Miss Mower plays the wife with an unusual grasp of the power to put actuality on the stage. Her woman is a convincing and reasonable creature battling with problems quite her own and outside her husband's mental meanderings. She gives the part a terseness which could come only from magnificent reading of the lines for which she is wonderfully equipped. In addition, she is gloriously beautiful. She holds the tradition of fine acting very high.

It costs a lot to maintain the liberty of a country; we have known that right alone, but we didn't realize the expensive upkeep of even liberty's

INDUCTION OF FEAR FOUND HARMFUL TO AMERICAN CHILDREN

CHICAGO—Parents, relatives and teachers, by means of threats, unsuitable stories or through the contagion of their own fears, bring fear into the lives of at least 37 per cent of the children of America, the National kindergarten and Elementary College here has determined from a questionnaire answered by 277 of the students. Where fear was not attributed to the home it was usually supplied by playmates and practical jokers or by too close contact with the forces of nature, according to the college which blamed 51 per cent of the cases of fear on these sources. Eleven per cent were unable to recall the cause of their outstanding fear, and only a little over 1 per cent could remember no fear at all.

The list of fears included virtually everything that entered into the life of the child, with the general exception of members of his family. The fear of darkness ranked first. Animals, insects, gypsies, fire, punishment, burglars, false faces, cannibals, teachers, parents and doctors were causes of fear to others.

"Less than 10 per cent of these fears could reasonably be considered of value to the child as a protection against danger," said the college. "The remaining 90 per cent are worse than valueless, they are a menace to the mental, moral physical and social development of the child. Their effect is not limited to childhood, for more than half of these college students admitted they never had been able entirely to overcome these fears. Normal fears, better termed 'reasonable caution,' the usefulness and necessity for which have been carefully explained or demonstrated to the child, do not leave this indelible stain."

The questionnaire also asked for suggestions as to the prevention of fear and first on the list was the advice that the child should never be frightened, either in fun or in order to secure obedience; that adults keep their fears to themselves and stop using the child as a safety valve; that they learn to control the child by other means than switches or darkness, and that they keep the child from the fearful or horrible element in stories, either of fiction or of real life.

symbol. It has cost the War department more than half a million dollars to care for the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor in the thirty nine years she has stood there. That includes the cost of installing elevators and electricity. Now the war department has decided that in one way and another, it has spent about enough to defend the liberty of the country, and has turned over this particular job to the department of the interior. And after all, some of that liberty-maintaining responsibility should be carried on by the forces of peace as well as of war.

Lady Says Her Back "Hurt Night and Day"—Least Noise Upset Her. Better After Taking Cardui.

Winfield, Texas.—"My back hurt night and day," says Mrs. C. L. Eason, of R. F. D. 1, this place. "I ached and ached until I could hardly go. I felt weak and did not feel like doing anything. My work was a great burden to me. I just hated to do up the dishes, even. I was no-account and extremely nervous."

"My mother had taken Cardui and she thought it would do me good, so she told me to take it. My husband got me a bottle and I began on it. I began to improve at once. It was such a help that I continued it until after the baby's birth."

"I took eight bottles and I can certainly say that it helped me. It is a fine tonic. It built me up and seemed to strengthen me. I grew less nervous and began to sleep better."

"I can certainly recommend Cardui to expectant mothers, for to me it was a wonderful help. In every way I felt better after taking it and I think it is a splendid medicine."

Cardui is purely vegetable, and contains no harmful drugs.

SPORTS

Pirates Start Climb To Front Row In Nat. Percy Jones Almost Enters Hall Of Fame;

Percy Jones, Chicago Cub south-paw almost entered the select circle of the hall of fame Friday when he stopped the Brooklyn Dodgers with Burtleigh Grimes, former Baron, doing the hurling, he allowed the Dodgers but one safe blow. The scratch hit came in the first inning when Johnston scratched a hit to Adams. That was the only semblance of a hit for the Dodgers through the entire afternoon.

Jones has not been heard of heretofore but his performance during the season will be watched with interest. It is too bad that Jones was interrupted in his march to fame with a single scratch hit to mar his otherwise perfect appearance.

After many weeks of cellar toiling the Pittsburgh Pirates have started the long road trip to the top of the league. The Giants are the latest victims of the Pirate batting spree. Friday the Giants were muzzled in ten innings by a 6-5 score. The Giants have a grand stand seat at the present time and are really enjoying the efforts of other clubs, fighting in lowly positions. McGraw is gone, Frisch is out. Groh will remain out for some time and yet the Giants with the same old fighting spirit that has won them many pennants and several dollars, remain at the top of the pile with a record that is equal to that of the Athletics of the American league.

POWER COMPANY PLAYS HUNTSVILLE

The Alabama Power company team left this afternoon for Huntsville where they play the semi-pro outfit organized in that city. The Power people will possibly play Huntsville on the local lot the latter part of next week. Gallagher is likely to receive the call for hill duty.

About the most comical thing that has appeared in sport circles this week is the assertion of Mike McTigue that he will knock out Paul Berlenbach when they meet next week. McTigue says he has laid $5,000 against $20,000 that he will stop Paul in the fight for the light heavy crown.

If McTigue should succeed in his claim the sporting world will not look upon his victory with surprise, it will be termed a miracle.

HORSES WEAR SNOW SHOES TO CROSS ROCKY MOUNTAINS

MISSOULA.—Weather conditions in some parts of northern Montana, particularly in the mountains sections, make it necessary at times to resort to rather unusual efforts to circumvent nature's handicaps.

An instance is the reported plan of G. S. Hinkle, superintendent of construction work on the Lolo pass road project, on the border between Montana and Idaho where the highway crosses the Rocky Mountains.

With snow still two-and-a-half feet deep and the beginning of the season's construction operations planned, Mr. Hinkle decided to send 30 horses over the mountains on snowshoes.

Boards about a foot square are fastened to the feet of the horses. These, Mr. Hinkle says, will be sufficient to support the animal's weight and it is said they quickly learn to handle the unaccustomed footgear.

Fred Morrel, district forester for the northwestern area of Mpuatna, says his men occasionally find it necessary to resort to the same expedient in crossing the summit of the range.

Tidal Wave Does Damage To Coast

(Associated Press)
ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 23.—A tidal wave, along 36 miles of the American shore line struck Lake Ontario causing heavy damage to one village and many summer resorts. No loss of life was reported.

SODUS POINT, N. Y., May 23.—A force tidal wave, of unknown origin, swept inshore from Lake Ontario here today, damaging several cottages and bathhouses, near the beach and adding between 15 and 20 feet of water to a sand bar at Crescent Beach. Simultaneous with the wave residents here believed they felt a slight earth tremor.
